Program: County Budget Update
Dodge County
Supervisor Kottke spoke concerning Dodge County’s budget. They started the budget process in August. They asked County Departments for a Zero % increase (or less). This year the departments were asked to work through Supervisor Kottke rather than the committees. The most challenging issue for the county is their nursing home costs.

Green Lake County
County Clerk Bostelmann spoke concerning the Green Lake County budget. They started the budget process in May. The Finance Committee asked for a 3% decrease from each department.
Additional reductions were needed. The most challenging issue for the county is the raising cost of Health Care.

Jefferson County
Accounting Manager, David Ehlinger spoke concerning Jefferson County’s budget. They started the budget process in July. Department Heads get direction from the County Administrator on the budget. The Finance Committee worked more closely with the six largest departments concerning their budget. All budgets are presented in September. The most challenging issue for the county is the raising cost of labor.

Sauk County
Kathy Schauf, Interim Administrative Coordinator spoke concerning Sauk County’s budget. They started the budget process in May; actually they looked at performance indicators in Jan/Feb. Use the Departments strategic plans goals for assistance in funding departments. Hold zero% increase this next budget. The most challenging issue for the county is the raising costs of healthcare and labor.

Columbia County
Supervisor Martin spoke concerning Columbia County’s budget. They started the budget process in June. The 2006 budget is a result of the work done cutting the 2003 budget. The Human Resources Executive met with the Department Heads to review changes to budgets. Zero% increases excluding personal and healthcare costs. The most challenging issue for the county is the raising costs of healthcare.

Kate Lawton and Alan Probst, with the UW-Extension Local Government Center talked about what they heard from the Counties budgets. The idea of multi-planning as done in Sauk and Columbia is a good idea, it would be good to take that idea to multi-year budgeting. The idea of performance-based budgets is popular in Counties but they make it hard to determine causality. The use of strategic plans and capital improvement plans can help budgeting. Counties need to look longer term and regionally to improve their decision making process. They also talked about techniques that can be used in budgeting.

Open Discussion on County Issues:
There was additional discussion about paying for County representatives to the Wisconsin Conservation Congress.
